The endearing comedy, which held special appeal for theatergoers of a generation ago, enjoyed one of the longest Broadway runs in the history of the theater. With a long history of revivals and stock performances, it retains every bit of its charm to delight modern audiences.

The play tells the story of a poor Irish girl, mischievous Peg, who inherits a fortune and is taken in by her aristocratic English relatives to be trained and polished in accordance with the family tradition and dignity. Going from one scrape to another with her beloved dog, Michael, the irrepressible Peg wins a fortune, a worthy Englishman, and the hearts of all concerned.

"AND NEITHER THE TWAIN SHALL MEET." Peg and her mongrel pet are snubbed by Ethel and her snooty poodle in a scene from the charming comedy "Peg O' My Heart," which will travel to the campus from the Huron Playhouse August 3.

Peg, left, is played by Elinor Epstein, Middletown, Conn., and Elsie Crouse, right, Marion, will portray Ethel.

Elinor Epstein, Middletown, Conn., plays Peg, while Bruce Wagner, Findlay, portrays her suitor, Jerry. Members of the aristocratic Chichester family are played by Elsie Crouse, Marion; Ron O'Leary, Manfield; and Gretchen Scherzer, Evansville, Ind. Supporting players are Bob Kinstle, Ashland; Ted Windt, Houston, Tex.; Jack Chapin, Cuyahoga Falls; and Barbara Kusevich, Cleveland. Dr. Donald Kleckner, chairman of the BGSU speech department and executive director of the Playhouse, is directing "Peg O' My Heart."

The play will be presented Tuesday through Saturday evenings, August 4-8, at Huron Playhouse, where curtain-time is at 8 p.m. EST.

Station WBGU's Request For Power Increase Granted

A request for an increase in power from 10 watts to 1,000 watts has been granted by the Federal Communications Commission to Radio Station WBGU, the educational FM station at BGSU. President Ralph W. McDonald has announced.

With additional equipment installed under this authorization, the University station may be heard within a radius of 30 miles of the campus.

The station will be moving soon into its new quarters in South Hall, the newly-completed classroom building on the BGSU campus. The station will have dual studios and control rooms which may be used independently or in combination.

Program policies of WBGU-FM will be adjusted to the larger power of the new station, and broadcasting hours will be determined at a later date, Dr. McDonald said.

WBGU-FM has operated continuously during the regular school years since it first went on the air in 1951, according to station director Sidney Stone, associate professor of speech. The student-operated station provides a laboratory for practical experience in broadcasting for students in speech and a number of related fields.

Workshops, Special Courses Meet

Seven summer workshops and special courses, five of which are presently in session, remain to be completed this summer.

"Driver Education," "The Teacher's Role in Staff Problems," and "Art for Elementary Teachers" workshops will meet for the last time this year on August 1. Each of the three classes started July 20.

Courses begun earlier this summer and meeting until the latter part of August include "Speech and Hearing Clinic" and "Summer Theatre at Huron, O."

The workshop for "Kindergarten

Teachers" will open August 3 and continue till August 21, and the one-month "Geology Field Course" group will leave for Elko, Nevada, on August 3.

Health Service Lists Second Session Hours

Second Summer session hours at the University Health Service have been announced by Dr. John Marsh, Health Service director.

During the week, the student medical center is open from 9 a.m. till noon and from 1-4 p.m. On Saturdays, hours are from 9 a.m. till noon.

Enrollment For 2nd Term Increases 13%

The continuing increase in enrollment at Bowling Green State University is reflected in the registration of 1,256 students for the second term of the current summer session, according to figures released today by Registrar Glenn Van Wormer.

The enrollment for the second summer term is the highest in the history of the University and represents an increase of 13 per cent over the second term of the 1958 summer school. The current session began July 20 and ends Aug. 21.

Attendance at the first session this summer, 1,737 students, was also the highest enrollment in University history, Mr. Van Wormer said.

The second term enrollment by classes is distributed as follows: freshmen, 90; sophomores, 180; juniors, 317; seniors, 349; graduate students, 263; and unclassified and transients, 57.

The most students (594) are enrolled in the College of Education. Graduate School is second with 263, then Business Administration, 201, and Liberal Arts, 160.

Other breakdowns include: Ohio residents, 1,178; non-residents, 75; students from outside the United States, 3; married, 573; and single, 683.

Enrollment in the seven workshops and special classes now underway also is expected to set a new record.

'Arsenic, Old Lace' Closes Saturday Eve

Currently on the payroll at Huron Playhouse is "Arsenic and Old Lace," the comedy classic which revolves around the sweetly homicidal tendencies of two loveable old maids and the antics of their three wacky nephews.

The hilarious play, which was originally intended as a serious melodrama, ran for over 1400 performances on Broadway. The Huron Playhouse version of the mirth-filled show will include several special innovations—touches which make the play a little different while retaining all the zest and appeal of the original Lindsay and Crouse production.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" is directed by Dr. Stanley Kahan, a member of the BGSU speech faculty. The play took the Huron stage Tuesday night for a five-night run through Saturday evening.

Thornton Wilder's play, "The Matchmaker," will open at Huron on August 11 for a five-night run.

Completing the season at the Huron, O., Playhouse will be the production of a children's play, "Rumpelstiltskin," for a two-day run in August.

DR. ARNOLD TO SPEAK

Dr. Frank C. Arnold, director of the Counseling Center at Bowling Green State University, will address the summer workshop of the Ohio Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development at Delaware, Ohio on the afternoon of August 24. Dr. Arnold's topic will be Psychological Aspects of Individual Differences.

INCOMING FRESHMEN entertain their parents in the Union Carnation Room during one of 17 pre-registration sessions scheduled until Aug. 19. Each session lasts two days and includes tests, tryouts for musical activities and meetings with academic and personnel deans.

"I LOVE YOU, YOU DOPE!" In a scene from the Huron Playhouse production, "Arsenic and Old Lace," Elaine (Jane Sturgis, Pitman, N.J.) informs her fiancé, Mortimer (Richard Reimold, Danville, Pa.) as his two maiden aunts survey the action. (Cheryl Smith, Bowling Green, and Jan Borgie, Bay Village.) The delightful comedy will open July 28 for a five-day run at The Huron Playhouse, Huron, Ohio.

Symphony Band Now On Record

"Symphony of Winds," the first recorded album of music by the 80-piece BGSU Symphonic Band under the direction of Roy J. Wegner, assistant professor of music, is now available here on both stereo or monaural discs at a special pre-release offer.

The Band recorded this hour of music for the two 12-inch long-playing discs last spring in the Union Ballroom.

The bound album, with cover design by University art student Bill Jenkins, will be released nationally September 1, 1959. The pre-release offer is being made by the Findlay Recording Company which is distributing the records for the national concern that cut them. The entire album will be sent postpaid for $6.98, while either one of the two records may be purchased singly for $4.00 postpaid.

The first record of the two discs includes "Passion in Paint" by Henri Rene, "Trauersinfonie" by Richard Wagner, and "Symphony for Band" by Vincent Persichetti. The second of the two records includes "Tulsa: A Symphonic Portrait in Oil" by Don Gillis, "Huntingtower" by Ottorino Respighi, "Overture for Band" by Felix Mendelssohn, and "Marche Sarcastique" by Dmitri Shostakovich. Counseling Center Conducts "College Success" Project

The Counseling Center is conducting a study this summer to determine the relationship of certain background factors with college success for the students who entered BGSU as freshmen in 1955.

The relationship to college success of such factors as standardized test scores, high school rank and grades, work experience before college, and economic standing is being studied.

Completion of the project, which was started four years ago, is made possible through a grant by the State Department of Education under the National Defense Education Act.

It is expected that information obtained will be of considerable use to both the University and to high schools in this section of Ohio in planning for college-bound youth, according to Dr. Frank C. Arnold, director of the Counseling Center.

Leisure Hour Features Discussion of '52, '56 Campaign Speeches

Dr. Raymond Yeager, assistant professor of speech and BGSU forensics coach, will lead the informal discussion of "Presidential Campaigns" at the Lemonade Leisure Hour in the Union Carnation Room this afternoon at 3:30.

He plans to pay particular attention to speech-making—"ghost-writing," how the candidates prepare for speech delivery, etc. He will tell some anecdotes from his own experiences when he accompanied the candidates of both the Republican and Democrat parties in the 1952 and 1956 campaigns. Dr. Yeager travelled on the campaign trains with Adlai Stevenson, Richard Nixon, and President Eisenhower during those election years.

The Bowling Green State University "Summer Study Abroad" tour group has arrived at Durham where its members are settled for a month of life and intensive study in a castle.

In a letter written July 11 from Lumley Castle, Chester-le-Street, Durham, England, Dr. Howard Brogan, tour director, told of the trip to Durham and impressions upon arriving there:

"After visiting Oxford and Cambridge (where we paid particular attention to literary association), we came on to Durham Monday, July 6, and from there, by chartered bus to Lumley Castle six miles north of the ancient cathedral city.

"Northern England looks very different from the southern part, owing to some degree to the building from darker stone; but the character of the country is also wilder and more rugged.

"Durham is certainly one of the most picturesque cities on the island, with its narrow stone streets running at all angles (making direction of traffic by television a necessity), and its citadel almost surrounded by a loop of the River Wear, dominated by a gigantic Norman cathedral and castle. The cathedral has pleasant historical associations as containing the bones of the venerable Bede. One is amused to find that the castle has been partly reconstructed by Rockefeller money.

"Lumley Castle is an enormous structure with a great baronial hall, entered from a broad stone platform in front. The castle appears to be about 200 feet square, with a great tower at each corner. It was constructed in the 14th century essentially as it is now—as a quadrangle around a courtyard—on an eminence overlooking the Wear. Protecting it at the rear is a deep ravine, now filled with a beautiful woods of enormous beech trees. It is still possessed by the family which built it long ago.

"Our party is scattered about the castle—some of us 90 stone steps up in a tower, some down mysterious corridors at a lower level, some on the lower stone courtyard beside the castle. We dine in the huge baronial hall, and study in a lovely room with beautiful plaster work and 18th century decor. There are magnificent views out over the countryside. We can now say that we know what it is like to live in a castle!"

Further communication from Lumley Castle, postmarked July 20, reads:

"This last week, our group has had many new experiences, though a good deal of the time, we have been busy at our study. Two of the most interesting experiences have been a visit to the Blue Coat School and an invitation to observe a troupe of English dancers.

"The Blue Coat School was founded in the 17th century in imitation of the famous Blue Coat School in London which Coleridge, Lamb, and many other great men attended. Originally, the children were clothed in knee-length blue coats, knee breeches, black shoes, and blue caps, and hence the name. These were charity schools for those unable to educate themselves in any other way.

"With the passage of time, the uniform has been dropped, but the school has continued ever since to carry out the original purpose. While buildings and equipment are antiquated by our standards, the school - master who showed us around was so enthusiastic for his institution that he expressed gratitude that he was likely to retire before rebuilding become necessary.

"The dancers were a voluntary group of young people (the leader a young man of 19) from Stockton-on-Tees, a city of some 80,000 in County Durham. They were performing for a group of Swedish students of conversational English staying in St. Mary's, a woman's college of Durham University. These Swedish students invited us over to see the dancing. The men performed a considerable number of ancient Morris dances, dressed in appropriate costume. These were beautifully done. Most impressive of all was a sword dance from Durham County itself, very athletic and unbelievably complex. There were also mixed dances, one of them an ancient court dance, and all of them of professional quality astonishing in amateurs.

"These were certainly highlights of our stay so far!"

The dozen members of the travel-study group will return to the United States August 14 after ten weeks of touring and studying in Europe and England.

South Hall To House 3 Departments

The big move is on for three of the University's departments—psychology, sociology, and speech—which will be housed in the new South Hall, just completed on the BGSU campus.

The classroom building, located on the south edge of the main quadrangle of campus fronting Wooster Street, is 182 feet long, 54 feet wide, and 48-50 feet high. The structure is built of re-enforced concrete under face brick with limestone trim.

The interior of the building is finished with ceramic tile and birch panelling. There is fluorescent lighting in each room in addition to the generous use of windows which provides for a maximum of natural light. Stairs are located at either end of the building and an elevator is situated at the east end. There are entrances on each of the four sides of South Hall.

The four floors are filled with classrooms of varying sizes, offices, laboratories, sound proof rooms for speech and hearing testing, and a radio-television studio. All the South Hall classrooms will be scheduled for use every hour by many departments of the University.

First Floor

The first floor of South Hall includes two elevated lecture rooms, three classrooms, three offices, a mechanical room, and a receiving room. A brass plate across the width of the building in the main lobby is the expansion point for the structure. The offices are situated on either side of the lobby. As one moves down the first floor hallway, one notices the "kinked" walls which provide, not only for variety in appearance of the hall, but also for a maximum of good acoustics in the lecture halls on each side. Other features of the lecture halls are small anterooms off the main area for the lecturer's preparation, and cloak rooms for students to hang their coats.

Second Floor

The second floor houses eight classrooms, a map and chart room, two seminar rooms, the psychology department offices, and a three-room observation suite with one-way mirrors and special speaker system.

Third Floor

The third floor of South Hall provides space for 26 offices, a speech clinic, a speech therapy laboratory, four sound-proof rooms for speech and hearing testing, 22 hearing cubicles, a computing room, and a photographic dark-room.

On the north side of the third floor is an absolutely sound-dead room to be used for experimentation. Isolated on three sides, it has a double entranceway and a 650-pound inner door. Its hollow divided walls are 18 inches thick and lined with Fibreglas insulation, its floor is cork-lined, and its ceiling is of soundproof perforated panelling.

Next door to the sound-dead room is a suite of three sound-proofed rooms for hearing tests. The middle room is equipped with an Allison Laboratories' audiometer with built-in tape recorder and phonograph, and two speakers to the other rooms in the suite. The set of rooms with its "stereo system" equipment will be used for teaching on all levels, and will be operated by faculty members and qualified graduate students, and perhaps by advanced speech students.

Fourth Floor

The fourth floor houses the radio and television studios, 10 offices, an animal room, a seminar room, a psychology laboratory with 14 cubicles, and four experimental rooms. The TV control room features raised panelled floors over the wiring for the bottom-fed equipment, making the entire system accessible to the engineer. The room also features a suspended ceiling which will allow room for technical expansion, should the need ever arise. Radio and television equipment will come from Gates Radio Corporation and RCA.

The building has a double shaft incinerator with hopper doors on every floor. All piping throughout South Hall is easily accessible. Pipes run all the way to the roof and there is a pipe room on each floor with steel gratings for workmen to walk on. This will allow for efficient communication between floors by workmen when looking for piping difficulties, building, with a tunnel for repair. There is also a pipe trench around and under the outside of the men.

The new building was financed with state bond-issue funds appropriated by the 1956 special session of the Ohio General Assembly. South Hall is part of the University's long-range building program. Construction completed since 1955 under the building program includes Rodgers Quadrangle, Alice Prout Residence Hall, Founders Quadrangle, the Hall of Music, the University Union, and the Home Economics Building. The second unit of Overman Hall is scheduled for completion next year. The program will also include construction of a men's residence center and Memorial Hall.

Two Groups Schedule August Meetings Here

Two off-campus groups will hold special meetings at the University Union in August, Col. F. M. Cobb, Union director, said today.

The Association of Philanthropic Homes for the Aged will have an Arts and Crafts Workshop August 3-6, with about 60 people anticipated.

The State Department of Education plans a conference for August 10-14.

Two groups have made reservations for meetings at the University Union in September. An estimated 1,500 Lutheran women will meet here September 9, and there will be a conference of YMCA secretaries from Ohio and West Virginia here September 11-13.
